

PELHAM, N. H.

Pelham, N. H., April 4.

The Ladies Aid society met with Mrs. Frank M. Woodbury at the centre last Thursday. Among guests were included Mrs. William F. Marsh and Miss Florence E. Marsh of Salem Depot and Mrs. Ruth Long Richardson of Walpole, formerly regular associates at society meetings. A letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Hills Lyman of Brooklyn, N. Y., was read by Mrs. Lillian M. Wood. Mrs. Lyman was formerly Miss Anna Hills of this town. Mrs. Wood presented Mrs. Herbert M. Gale a patchwork quilt—the handiwork of herself and Mrs. Martha Hubley.

The entertainment was directed by Miss Mary Hobbs and an April Foolish Fashion Show was featured.

Costumes rummaged from attics and other stowaway places were brought forth and “modelled” for the amusement and interest of 31 guests present. Miss Hobbs paraphrased her introduction of models with the words “In the spring a woman’s fancy lightly turns to thoughts of clothes.” Many old costumes formerly stylish in design once more met approbation, critical but appreciative.

Mrs. Alice M. Overlock and Mrs. Lavina Marsh were hostesses of the occasion. Sandwiches and coffee were served.

At a meeting of the Mothercraft Club, Friday evening, April 9, Mrs. Davis, R. N., will give a stereopticon lecture on maternal hygiene. All members are urged to be present.

Miss Ruth E. Sherburne, Richard W. Ivers and Harry H. Atwood jr. are returning to their studies at the University of New Hampshire after their week’s vacation.

The time of morning services at Pelham Congregational church has been changed and became effective today. Services opens at 10.15 and the hour of worship starts at 11.15. The change was made to allow the pastor, Rev. Herbert M. Gale the privilege of directing music at the First Congregational church in Lowell.

The selectmen and budget committee who were authorized to dispose of the estate of the late Miss Martina Gage of Lowell insofar as the provisions of her bequest applied to this town voted Friday night to reserve a 70 acre lot known as the Keyes lot for the use of Pelham Boy Scouts and 4-H clubs of this town. The Keyes lot is located in North Pelham and is traversed by Marshall’s brook so-called (now Coombs’). It lies between two ranges of hills with much flat land that can be utilized for playgrounds and the brook can be dammed for a pond of wide dimension and good depth. The whole area constituting a natural watershed of great possibilities. The suggestion is made that it be named “The Martha Gage Reservation” out of respect for and in appreciation of the donor.
