FEBRUARY 12TH, 1873.

PELHAM STREET YARN.

A few days ago a lady called, and after speaking of the weather, &c., said: "M., have you heard the news?" "No; what is it?" "Well, I don't suppose I ought to tell, but if you will promise not to let anybody know who repeated it I will let you into the secret. The other day I called on Mrs. Woodbury, and she said, Mrs. Nathan Hobbs said, that Mrs. Currier told her, that Mary Frye Gage had told Mrs. Ela, who sent word to Mrs. Spofford, who told Mrs. William Butler, who said that Mrs. Grosvenor had told Mrs. Benj. Cutter, and she told Mrs. Fox, who sent word to Mrs. John Spaulding, who told Mark Gould's wife, who told Araminta Stacey, and she told Amanda Cloyd, who told Carrie Hobbs, and she had seen Francis Richardson, who wrote a note to Mrs. Fred. Cutter, and she told Ann Eliza, who told Helen, and she told Martin, and he told George, who told Abbie, and Abbie told Clarinda, and Clarinda made Charlie promise he wouldn't tell John Henry, who did tell Mrs. Jo, and she went right down to see the Colonel's wife, who said she guessed it was so, for she heard 'Little Enoch' say that the ladies of the First Congregational Society would hold a Festival at the Town Hall, Wednesday evening, Feb. 12th, where there would be baked beans and China dolls, brown bread and a fishing-pool, frosted cakes and muslin aprons, cold meats and pin-cushions, and everything that will give variety to the entertainment. Music by Greeley's Band, Salem Band, Hudson Band, or a brass band.

N. B. Street Yarn spun by the knot, skein, or in larger quantities. All orders left at A. D. Greeley's blacksmith shop will be promptly attended to.
