Thank you for your email Mr. Hayes. I appreciate the quick reply! I did see your book on the Pelham Historical Society's website along with a few other books. Pelham is really on the ball as far as publishing local history books. Most of the other towns I have contacted have their historic documents scattered all over town in people's attics and basements.

Please do let me know if you change your mind and would like to work with us on another pictorial history. Thanks again.

Sincerely,

The Pelham Historical Society has already published "Reflections, A Pictorial History of Pelham".

Thanks for your inquiry

Dear Mr. Hayes,

I'm hoping that you can point me in the right direction. Do you have a collection of vintage photographs or postcards of Pelham? If so, are you familiar with or responsible for maintaining the image archive?

I am the assistant editor of Massachusetts and New Hampshire titles at Arcadia Publishing, the nation's leading publisher of photographic history books. We are very interested in publishing a pictorial history of Pelham in our Images of America series of books, and are looking for an author for the project. I'm hoping that this is something that either yourself or someone else you know may be interested in taking on.

Arcadia has previously published hundreds of pictorial histories on communities in New Hampshire, as well as around the country. Arcadia is a full service trade publisher, which means that there is no cost for working with us. We absorb all of the costs of publishing the book and provide you with expert sales and marketing support after its release. We pay royalties on each book sold and give authors the option to purchase highly discounted books to resell for fund-raising.

I encourage you to visit our Web site, www.arcadiapublishing.com, to explore our new titles and learn more about our company. Please let me know if you are interested in learning more, and I will be delighted to send you some detailed information and a sample book.

I would love to have the opportunity to work with your organization on a Pelham book and look forward to hearing from you soon!

Kind Regards
