We also find that the Treasurer has received $13,038.52, and has also paid orders above mentioned leaving a balance in the treasury of $3,139.42.

WILLIAM G. BUTLER,
DANIEL M. WEBSTER,
RICHARD B. HILLMAN,

Auditors of the Town of Pelham.

REPORT

Of the Committee chosen by the Town at a Special Meeting held April 9, 1895, for the purpose of Erecting a Memorial and Library Building.

The committee chosen at this meeting consisted of the following citizens:

Charles W. Hobbs, George S. Butler, Frank M. Woodbury, Frank H. Hillman, William G. Butler, George H. Currier, Daniel M. Webster, and Augustus Berry.

The committee organized with the choice of Charles W. Hobbs, chairman; George S. Butler, secretary, and Frank M. Woodbury, treasurer.

The committee voted to locate the Library and Memorial Building on land given by Frank M. Woodbury, between the First Congregational Church and the residence formerly owned by John Woodbury. Voted that the building should be of brick and granite and several plans were considered. A majority of the committee favored the plan submitted by Stickney & Austin, architects of Lowell, and it was voted to adopt their plan, and specifications were accordingly drawn up and sealed proposals to build the same were called for. The proposals were opened October 1st. There were five proposals. George M. Cole & Co., of Lawrence, were the lowest bidders, but all were thought to be too high. A subsequent meeting was held and George M. Cole &

Co. were requested to be present and state wherein they thought the building plans and specifications could be cut down so as to come within the money at the disposal of the committee.

The committee adopted some of their suggestions and a contract was finally made with George M. Cole & Co., of Lawrence, Mass., to build a stone and brick building, the contract price being $5,075.00. This did not include a finished building in all respects, there being some few things mentioned in the specifications which have to be furnished by the town.

The town at its special meeting authorized the selectmen to borrow $4,000, which they have done. Generous contributions have been received from people who have gone from Pelham but are still interested in its welfare.

The amount of money at the disposal of the committee is as follows:

Town of Pelham voted.....	$4,000
Donations as per treasurer's report.....	$930 which has been turned over to the town.

Other contributions have been pledged to the amount of $950. This will bring the money at the disposal of the committee up to Feb. 15th, 1896 to about $6000; $2390 has been paid to wards the building, leaving $3610 due when the building is completed. The committee think they will be able to procure enough more money from interested parties outside of the town to fully complete the building satisfactory to the town.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE S. BUTLER,

Secretary Building Committee.

REPORT.

The School Report has a value and importance, inasmuch as it calls the attention of parents and citizens directly to the schools. It is well that the report present their actual condition, what they are doing and what they have done, and this will be the better understood if there is a statement of the end the Board of Education has had in view. This has embraced many things, but the term thoroughness may perhaps include all. There cannot be thorough work if the commencement is wrong. The how the infant class is taught affects the scholar in all the ascending grades, a clear understanding of the elements enables him to use them in all their combinations. Clear, distinct perceptions of the elements will lead to clear ideas of things. This stimulates thought and the individual is satisfied with nothing short of clear thought in all matters. The sum and substance of education is the ability to think, and the perfection of education is to think clearly; studies pursued for the business of life are the incidents of education, not the substance. The habit of doing things well in school will attend the individual in all the detail of life. The chief fault of the schools has been their superficial work, teaching has been mechanical, the pupils have been carried by their teachers. It has been a coaching of the scholars, not merely for examinations, but for their daily recitations, and these are of an automatic character; the pupil cannot move a step out of the beaten track in which the teacher has led him, he cannot vary a process in the least, nor can he apply a principle to anything else than the case in hand.

The thing that the schools the past year have aimed for, is to teach children to think and to learn to apply principles in the solution of all the questions that touch human welfare. The way to correct a faulty habit is not to merely attend to it in some specific case but in everything. The way to learn to use some particular faculty is not by attending to it in some particular department of use but in all. By disregarding this principle there is a large waste of power in the schools. In reading, the right use of the voice is essential, but if the voice is regarded only in the stated reading lesson and neglected in all other use of it, then what is acquired in the reading lesson is more than lost in the other uses of it. There is an absurdity in particular attention to a reading lesson from a reader and an utter disregard to how anything is read in arithmetic, geography, grammar, history, or any study of the school. The same may be said in regard to how a question is asked and answered, or a recitation is made. There is an absurdity in carefulness about grammar in the language study, and the entire neglect of it in the conversation and other exercises of the school. Exactness in the language class will not amount to much if it is disregarded in other things.

Thoroughness as the end in instruction includes everything essential to a complete character. It necessitates faithfulness in everything pertaining to oneself or others. It involves all the virtues, the thorough pupil is faithful to every school responsibility. His deportment is correct. His intercourse with his mates is gentle and kind. He is unselfish and self-sacrificing and exemplary in all things. Much attention has been given to correct expression and the manner of recitation. It is not sufficient that a pupil may understand a subject, but he must be able to clearly express himself and interestingly communicate his knowledge to others. Scholars who have learnt to make good recitations, will be able to stand in the public assembly and address their fellows, plead for their own rights or the rights of others, denounce wrong and exalt righteousness and truth. It has been the constant effort to have pupils make these acquisitions and to so study that the labor of the day shall be a storage of power for subsequent use. There has been progress on these lines in the schools, and though slow and perhaps small, still when different periods are compared, it is very manifest and gratifying.

This progress is retarded by the frequent change of teachers which is unavoidable in our schools. The small salary we pay, the difficulty often occurring in obtaining board, and inconvenience in the way of public conveyances, lead teachers to resign or decline positions in our schools, especially as more eligible positions are offered. Where the change of teachers is frequent, it is difficult to have a system of study and uninterrupted progress is impossible. It takes a new teacher several weeks in a school to so understand it and get it so in hand that she can do her best work. A school abbreviated two or three weeks for the purpose of retaining a teacher will accomplish more than a new teacher of equal merit in the full term. Besides it should always be borne in mind that a new teacher is necessarily an experiment.

THE CO-OPERATION OF PARENTS AND COMMUNITY.

The parent must see that his children are constant and punctual in their attendance. Herein lies the success and value of the school, the interest of the pupil not constant will be small. Such an one cannot be thorough. Irregularity on the part of one scholar will quench the ardor of others. He disturbs the system of the school, and renders it impossible to have a perfect organization, and not only this but he will up-set the daily plans of the teacher and discourage her in all attempts at vigorously progressive work. Ought in the home or society that ever diverts the attention of children from the school, wounds the school in its vitals and robs the young of that which is better than gold. Whatever is planned in community in the nature of social entertainment must first of all be considered from the standpoint of the schools, nor must this at any time even be considered an insignificant matter. Community needs to be aroused to the truth that all things take their value from the schools as a standard. The supreme question in these times of trouble and alarm is the school. It is not finance, or business, or legislation, or war or peace, but how to best educate the young, how to care for and save the coming generation of the young, and then other questions will settle themselves.

ENCOURAGE SELF RESPECT IN THE YOUNG.

The notion that the young may be put anywhere in the public assembly, crowded into the back seats or undesirable corners, where the opportunity to listen or observe is not good, and when the temptation to rudeness is great, is not merely a mistake but a wrong. It does not nurture self respect and destroys what there may be. Boys and girls should be given seats of honor. School-rooms should be pleasant and inviting. The grounds should be neat and tasty. Let there be from year to year an effort on the part of citizens to improve the school house and its surroundings, to make everything in all its appointments more refined, and to increase the equipments for all literary, moral, social and patriotic culture. The schools can never be what they should be unless there is a disposition to help them. The cry now goes up to the citizens from all the schools, "help us." Help in furnishing board for teachers. Help by encouraging words to the children. Help by giving cheer to all indications of advance in any line. Help by demanding that every thing about the school house shall be a stimulus to pure thought and noble character. Help by perhaps breaking yourself from some pernicious habit, for the children's sake. Such considerations are frequently presented, they were well set forth in the last annual report, but they must continue to be presented until they produce the desired effect. Their efficacy will be as the persistency with which they are urged upon the attention of the community. High ends are reached only by effort born of whole heartedness, continued with all one's power and guarded with sleepless vigilance.

THE TEACHERS THE PAST YEAR.

The schools the past year have been fortunate in teachers of experience. Two resumed the work of the previous year. Two others had previous experience in their schools. In these four schools the teachers remained the entire year with very gratifying results. In the remaining school two different teachers were employed, each had fine accomplishments and rendered valuable service, but neither could present the finished work they would have done in the service of the entire year.

THE INTEREST OF PARENTS AND CITIZENS.

It is impossible for the schools to be at their best without this. This interest must not be as a matter of convenience or entertainment, but the prompting of love and duty. Every citizen should recognize his personal obligations as a citizen, to visit the schools, to become acquainted with them, and make his conviction of their importance manifest.

APPROPRIATIONS.

The schools are the last interest of the town to be scrimped. School buildings and grounds should always be kept in the best condition. These are an educational force as much as the teachers. There are reference books and pieces of apparatus necessary for the understanding of the studies of the school room as well as to create an interest in them. Every school house should have, what may be termed a library or teachers' room, where such aids may be kept.

The idea of the public school, involves that of patriotism, love of country, and the public welfare, and hence there should be lessons in patriotism in the common schools. All the duties of life should be taught, and pure and upright character as a thing of the first importance and the greatest value, should be constantly magnified.

FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
PELHAM FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

TRUSTEES' REPORT.

This has been an eventful year in the history of the Pelham Free Public Library on account of the appropriation of money by the town to provide for the erection of a library building which is now nearing completion and will probably be ready to be occupied in a very few months.

The trustees are happy on this occasion to tender to those public-spirited men and loyal sons of Pelham, who have so generously given aid in the construction of this building, both their own appreciation of the favors and the sincere thanks of the town. The vote of the town to build this building shows its appreciation of the benefits of a free public library and is an honor to those who passed it. It also shows that we are not left behind in the race of progress which is so characteristic of these waning years of the nineteenth century.

The diversity of taste in the choice of literature is very marked, each of us has a literary taste peculiarly our own, and this fact makes it somewhat difficult for the trustees to select books which will please all, and for this reason it is advisable that all who have individual preference should send in a list of books which they prefer to the trustees and by so doing they will help us very much in the selection of new books. Several such lists have been received, and many books thus recommended have been secured. We have several lists now on hand, some of the books named in these will shortly be added to the library. We are thankful to those who have already sent in lists and hope to receive more.

Fiction being the class of literature most generally read more books of this class have been purchased, but in our selections we have endeavored to get only the best books by well known authors.

We have thought it advisable not to buy many new books until we get settled in the new library building as the accommodations in the old place would be insufficient for any large occasion.

There has been 179 new books added this year, an increase of 50 over last year, and according to the treasurer's report there is $223.74 in the treasury against $277.36 last year, a decrease of $53.62, but which is a sum sufficient to make quite an addition of new books as we have accommodations for them.

With the increased facilities and added attraction of the new library building we think the future outlook for the library is bright indeed, and hope it will receive more patronage from the public for the ensuing year than it has in the past.

With best wishes for the prosperity of the library, this report is respectfully submitted.

SHERMAN HOBBS,

Treasurer Library Trustee .

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT.

Trustees of the Pelham Free Public Library:

The following report is respectfully submitted:

The library now contains 937 volumes, 179 having been added during the past year, 25 of which were gifts.

There were 1,930 books taken out during the year, a decrease of about 140 from last year's report, but the principal cause of this seems to have been the unfavorable weather on library day.

Largest number taken in one month, April.....	219
Smallest number taken in one month, Oct.....	123
Average number taken in one month.....	157
Largest number in one day, April 6.....	65
Smallest number in one day, Oct. 26.....	22
Average number in one day.....	38
Amount received in fines.....	$4.61

In all, 183 cards have been issued, 22 since March 1, 1895. There are usually about 90 of these in use.

Nearly two-thirds of the books taken out are fiction, the remainder being about evenly divided between books of travel and history.
